- Does your church use social media?
- Is your church service being streamed over the web or on the radio?
- How secure is the computer network?
As churches and church organizations look for ways to communicate with membership and reach out to their communities, social media, printed media, websites and streaming can be effective tools to connect with members and customers. With these opportunities come some inherent risks. In order to succeed with media we need to be prepared to understand and address risks such as cyber security and protecting your organization's reputation.
