FEBRUARY 2014 ISSUE

Dear Center for,

Birthdays, anniversaries, celebrations—events we love to honor as milestones in life. This year, Walla Walla University marks a number of significant milestones. Four specific groups will be honored at Alumni Homecoming 2014 on April 24-27—Student Association, Rosario Beach Marine Laboratory, Clyde and Mary Harris Art Gallery, and College Bowl.

A big undertaking? Perhaps, but the invitations have been sent and expectations are high. With 100 years of ASWWC/ASWWU leadership, a biology station that was purchased 60 years ago, and the art gallery opening in 1974, each of these entities passes yet another milestone. College Bowl, which had its beginnings in 1964 under the direction of Lorne Glaim '64 and John Christian '56 and continued until the early 2000s, was also a long-running feature in the history of WWU.

Engineers Without Borders Begins Second Project in Peru

Walla Walla University's Engineers Without Borders is in the early stages of a new project in Pucutuni, Peru, high in the Andes Mountains. In September 2013, they took a trip to the country to visit many communities and decide on a project. After their visit, the team settled on a project to design and install a new water system for the town. In 2014, they plan to return in March and September to work with the local community to complete this project. You can read about their adventure on their blog by clicking here.

Select Choir Records Their Music

Walla Walla University's select choir, I Cantori, has released a CD recording. The 17-track "Eternity Alone" is primarily classical church music, but includes a wide variety of mostly sacred styles. Click here for more information on how to purchase a copy of "Eternity Alone."

Bibs for WWU Babies

If you are an alum and have had a baby, email us your birth announcement. We will mail you a commemorative baby bib for your new little one. Bibs are soft cotton with a Velcro clasp and say "Future graduate of Walla Walla University." Here, Alexandria, daughter of Breanna (Mayne) Bork '06 and Michael '07, shows off her new bib.

WHERE THEY ARE NOW

Rebecca Hanan’13, communications graduate, starts hosting mid-days on Positive Life Radio 91.3 on the Walla Walla University campus in February. She worked at the station as a student announcer for the past five years and will also be the social media coordinator.

In November, CJ Brothers ’10 and ’12, biology graduate, who is working on her Ph.D. at the University of Alabama at Birmingham, boarded the National Science Foundation research vessel Nathaniel B. Palmer, a 308-foot icebreaker that can carry up to 37 scientists, 22 crew members, and a helicopter. Her mission: cruising around Antarctica, scanning the bottom of the ocean for king crabs for more than 20 days. The project is part of ongoing research into the crabs’ movement that began in 2011.

Vernon Nye Art Exhibit
Clyde and Mary Harris Art Gallery, Fine Arts Center | 1:30 – 6:30 p.m.

Vernon Nye Exhibit

Undergraduate Academic Symposium
Winter Educational Complex, Second Floor | 2:00-5:00 p.m.

Undergraduate students from a variety of disciplines present and display selected scholarship, highlighting Excellence in Thought.

Seminar: “Listening to the Marys: Voices of Early Adventist Women”
Peterson Memorial Library, Reference Room | 2:00 p.m.

Early Adventist believers called the women who preached and witnessed to their faith “the Marys.” They saw in these women a fulfillment of the prophecy of Joel that in the last days, both sons and daughters shall prophesy. However, women speaking in public went against the conventions of the time and for some violated the commands of Paul that women should keep silent. A search through 50 years of Review and Heralds, from its beginning in 1850 to 1900, traces the work women were doing in early Adventism and how Early Adventist leaders defended their right to speak. Presented by Beverly Beem, WWU English Professor, and Ginger Hanks Harwood.

Seminar: "40 Years of Flying Ministry – Wild Alaska”
TBD | 2:00 p.m.

Jim Kincaid ’74, Airline Pilot/Pastor/Church Administrator/Small Business Owner/Missionary to Alaska Native Peoples will outline his experience from Walla Walla University to almost 40 years in the “Last Frontier”. He will describe his concept of the “Business/Mission” model of ministry and field questions relating to aviation, ministry, and Alaska in general.

Seminar: “Johnny and the Pronto Pup Stand: Tales of Legal Woe”
TBD | 2:00 p.m.

Seminar: "Sea Cucumbers: How to Eat Dirt and Lose Your Guts"
TBD | 3:00 p.m.

Marine coastal areas are important ecosystems, both in terms of biodiversity and for the invaluable goods and services they provide to some of the poorest, most densely populated human societies. Sea cucumbers normally occur in high numbers in coastal habitats, but in many areas their numbers are declining rapidly due to excessive harvesting. Jim Nestler '84 and WWU Professor of Biology, studies focus on two questions; 1) do sea cucumbers provide any benefit to the habitats in which they live and 2) how do some sea cucumbers lose their internal organs and grow them back?

Seminar: “Ellen White and the Public”
TBD | 3:00 p.m.

Although much of Ellen White's ministry focused on building up her Seventh-day Adventist faith, she also preached sermons in churches of other faiths and gave temperance lectures to public audiences. Today, though, she is little known outside her own denomination. This spring Oxford University Press is publishing a biographical study of White for a general academic audience. Co-editor Terrie Dopp Aamodt, WWU Professor of History and Philosophy, will describe the production of this volume and its role in incorporating Ellen White into American religious history.

Seminar: "Lasagna Gardening: A Layered Approach to a No-Dig Garden”
TBD | 3:00 p.m.

If you don’t dig digging and if the thought of amending the Constitution seems easier than amending your plant beds, lasagna gardening might just be for you! This is a simple layering method of organic gardening that requires no tilling, digging, or weeding and produces rich and fluffy soil. Merlene Olmsted '69 discusses Lasagna Gardening, including using newspaper, grass clippings, peat moss, and vegetable scraps and other materials.

Randy Yaw Pi Contest
Kre tsc hmar Hall, Physics Lecture Hall, Room 107 | 3:14 p.m.

Watch students recite digits of Pi. The record for this contest is 1,769 digits! Spectators will each get a piece of pie.

Committee of 500 Appreciation Dinner
Kellogg Hall, Alaska Room | 5:30 p.m.

Executive officers of the Committee of 500 invite members and prospective members to the annual business meeting and dinner.
Piano Vespers
Melvin K. West Fine Arts Center, Auditorium | 6:30 p.m.
A concert of solo piano music performed by students of Professor Leonard Richter.

Homecoming Vespers
University Church, Sanctuary | 8:00 p.m.
Welcome the Sabbath with a program of sacred music, designed as a PRISM concert by the Walla Walla University Department of Music. Doors close promptly at 8:00 p.m.

SABBATH, APRIL 26

Bird Walk
Rigby Hall Parking Lot | 6:30 a.m.
Early risers are invited to join Biology Professor Joe Galusha ’68, Jim Nestler ’84, and David Lindsey, Chair of the Biology Department, for an early morning nature walk.

Prayer Breakfast
University Church, Fellowship Hall | 8:30 a.m.
Share in the power of prayer and a delicious breakfast.

Sabbath Schools and Worship Services

BRITISH REFORMATION TOUR

SEPTEMBER 2-16, 2014

Join alumni and friends from Walla Walla University for a British Reformation Tour with John McVay and Gregory Dodds.

A 2014 Walla Walla University British Reformation Tour has been planned specifically for alumni and their family and friends. Join John McVay, President, and Gregory Dodds, Chairman of the History Department, as they capture your attention visiting sites such as Oxford, Tyndale Monument, Edinburgh Castle, and John Knox House. Enjoy a walking tour of Cambridge, Evensong at St. Paul’s and the nostalgia of staying on the campuses of four prestigious British universities.

From the heart of England to the Scottish moors, to the marshlands of East Anglia, and to the bustle of the City of London, this tour will seek to capture the places and the people that inspired generations and shaped the world we now inhabit and the faith we hold.

COST:

The $2,950 tour price includes lodging, daily breakfasts and some group dinners, travel within Britain, visits to historical sites, all entrance fees, and complete travel insurance. Airfare is paid for by each participant. A $300 non-refundable deposit is required to reserve a space for this tour. The tour has limited occupancy so early registration is recommended. A discount of $50 will be given to all who register by February 14, 2014.

CANCELLATION POLICY:

The $300 deposit is non-refundable. This deposit guarantees your space on the tour. The full $2,950 tour price is due on or before July 15, 2014 with no refunds being given after this date unless tour position is filled.

SPECIAL REQUIREMENTS:

This trip involves walking and climbing stairs while visiting very old historical sites. Many of the tourist sites are not ADA compliant. Anyone aged 80-84 must pay an additional travel insurance (call for details). Those over 85 must provide their own travel insurance.

In September, the Walla Walla University chapter of Engineers Without Borders ventured to South America to begin the group’s second project. Students and faculty leaders began the planning and design of a water system for a small, remote community in Peru.

Led by Bryce Hill, Braden Anderson, Jim Wodrich, and Brian Roth, the EWB-WWU team also made contact with local Peruvian municipalities to work on projects to better the communities. Despite some communication challenges, the EWB team shared their knowledge of creating designs of each project and collected data to get the projects started. They traveled to remote villages such as Chillca, Pampachili, Phinaya, and Pitumarca – small communities high in the mountains.

A blog was kept during the expedition, and it can be viewed in its entirety at ewb-wwu.org/blog/.

Wodrich reflects on a memorable day in Peru in an excerpt from the blog:

“Suddenly, Ruben points to the sky and exclaims, ‘Condor!’ We look back at the water line route to see two condors riding the thermals above the project. Moments like these; a long day of work completed, miles hiked, thousands of feet climbed, enjoying steaming hot potatoes with new found friends, watching condors soaring high as the sun sets over the Andes. These moments our team will remember the rest of our lives.”

This is the second major project completed by WWU-EWB. A new school and related infrastructure improvements were last year in Nueva Suyapa, Honduras.

WWU's I Cantori Releases New CD

Select Choir Shares Their Music Through Recording

By: Jaci Shankel

Cover of "Eternity Alone"

Walla Walla University’s select choir, I Cantori, has released a CD recording. The 17-track “Eternity Alone” is primarily classical church music, but includes a wide variety of mostly sacred styles.

Directed by Kraig Scott, I Cantori began recording on Sunday, Jan. 20, in the University Church. Without a live audience, it was a novel experience for the 41 members of the choir. As Chelsea Bond, a soprano in I Cantori says, “there was something exhilarating in knowing that…each of our voices were going to be captured and remembered in that CD.” Two more recording sessions later, with microphones placed by Larry Aamodt, professor of engineering, the choir had finished their part in the production of the CD.

The creation of “Eternity Alone” was inspired by the wish of members of I Cantori; the wish to share their music with the family and friends who could not attend the concerts and church services that the select choir performs throughout the school year. Mae Liongco, a then-freshman member of I Cantori, describes the CD as “hard work, good feels, and our gift to everyone in a bundle. It is one of the greatest products of our efforts, and what I think is a little piece of heaven on earth.”

They “pray that through this offering of praise and reflection God may warm your heart as you contemplate eternity alone.”

To view a list of the 17 tracks, as well as the names of the 41 members of I Cantori that contributed, visit www.wallawalla.edu/eternityalone.

To purchase a copy of “Eternity Alone:”

- Visit www.cdbaby.com/cd/icantoriofwallawallauniv to purchase either a hard copy or download of the music
- Visit the office of the Department of Music, which is located in the Melvin K. West Fine Arts Center at WWU (204 S. College Avenue, College Place)
- Send an email to music@wallawalla.edu with “CD Order” as the subject heading
