July 15 National Perils-of-Harry-Potter Interview on The Janet Mefferd Show

Dear friend,

I've got good news. This morning at exactly 6:00 am EST, White Horse Media sent out a Press Release to national media entitled, "7th Harry Potter Movie Hastens Diabolic Trend Among Teens." If you have read any of my books or watched our DVDs about Harry Potter or The Twilight Saga, then you know how deeply concerned we are about these novels and movies, and about the dangerous influence of all other occult-laden forms of entertainment on children, teens, and adults.

As usual, last night we prayed earnestly before the Press Release went out, "Dear God, open doors for your Word!" Praise His Name, He heard our prayers. This morning I was contacted by the producer of The Janet Mefferd Show heard coast-to-coast on the Salem Radio Network. Janet wants an interview this Friday, July 15, on the very day the movie comes out.

The interview will be from 4-4:30 EST. You can listen live at that time at www.thewordfm.com. Please pray for my time with Janet this Friday. Her radio show is national, and possibly millions will be listening.

Tomorrow my entire family, along with Gilbert Navarro, head to Gladstone camp meeting in Oregon for my 4-part series entitled, "Secrets of Gethsemane."

May holy angels watch over us all,

Tasting Him always,

Steve Wohlberg

7th Harry Potter Movie Hastens Diabolic Trend Among Teens

MEDIA ADVISORY, July 11, 2011 /Christian Newswire/ --

Pottermania will experience one last spasm as the Grand Finale of Harry Potter movies, Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows (Part 2), opens July 15. When the book was released in July 2007, 11 million copies sold in 24 hours, making it the "fastest selling book in history." When HP 7 (Part 2) hits theaters this Friday, once again, global interest will soar higher than Quidditch players seeking Golden Snitches.

While most consider all anti-Potterism downright Mugglish, concerns remain high among many parents over exactly where these novels and movies, along with Stephanie Meyer's Twilight Saga, are catapulting this generation of kids.

Consider this: It's no secret that the Harry Potter storyline about both good and evil wizards has fueled global teenage increase in Wicca and the occult. Next, Stephanie Meyer's The Twilight Saga about good and evil vampires has done the same thing for vampirism. Blood drinking among teens has surged. What's next? Here's a terrifying possibility: New novels (made into movies?) about "good" and evil demons, and the thrill of being possessed by the "good ones." Two mesmerizing tales with such storylines are immensely popular right now: Diana Rowland's series about detective Kara Gillian, a Summoner of Demons; and Jenna Black's novels about exorcist Morgan Kingsley who allows a sexy Demon King to inhabit her body "to save the human race."

Think carefully: What might happen if a "third wave" of popular entertainment inspires gullible teenagers to seek possession by demonic entities, thinking it's good for them? To those who believe in a real behind-the-scenes war between good and evil, the prospect is truly terrifying.

Steve Wohlberg, Speaker/Director of White Horse Media (Priest River, ID) and bestselling author of Exposing Harry Potter and Witchcraft (Destiny Image, 2007) and The Trouble with Twilight (Destiny Image 2010) is deeply passionately about where occult-laden entertainment is heading. TV producer (Israel in Prophecy, Hour of the Witch), radio host, and the author of 26 books, he has appeared in three History Channel documentaries (Strange Rituals, Secrets of the Seven Seals, The Armageddon Battle Plan), and has spoken by special invitation inside the Pentagon and U.S. Senate.
