Middle East Rage: Radical Muslims throughout the Middle East continue their week-long wave of bloody protests against the U.S. "sparked by the low-budget film [Innocence of Muslims], which portrays Islam's Prophet Muhammad as a fraud, a womanizer and a child molester." Whatever your view of the current Middle East mess, Revelation's prediction that "the nations were angry (Rev. 11: 18) surely applies. Soon -- none know how soon -- the next part, "and Your wrath has come," will hit Planet Earth like a whirlwind. Don't you sense it? Time is running out fast. If you doubt, let me again urge you to watch the video "14 Days of Global Cataclysm in August 2012." "The time is at hand" (Revelation 22:7).

Big Worcester Meetings Coming Oct. 5,6: I just returned from a 3-day trip to Worcester, Massachusetts in preparation for our big "2012 and the End of the World" Bible Prophecy Seminar to be held October 5,6 inside the 1500-seat Sullivan Auditorium of Worcester State University. Two weeks from this Friday, the meetings begin. Pray for us.

"2012 and the End of the World" Pocketbook: If you or your church has any interest in distributing more of White Horse Media's powerful "2012 and the End of the World" pocketbook, now is the time to order. I often offer them to fellow travelers in airports. It's easy. People are interested. Between now and Dec. 21 (when the Mayan Long Count Calendar runs out) multitudes of searching souls will be very open to learning about this topic. Let's take advantage of the interest and share Bible truth about Jesus and His return.
Worcester, I will stop in St. Louis and drive to 3ABN for a "3ABN Today" interview on October 9. I'll let you know when the program airs.

Join the Movement: Promote the Ten Commandments on Your Car: WHM will soon purchase 1000 (to start with) rear window car decals that will simply state in bold letters, www.TenCommandmentsFromGod.com, which is a website we created to explain the biblical relationship between the Ten Commandments and the Gospel of Jesus Christ. 1000 decals cost about $1000. Would anyone like to sponsor this? If so, let me know. Just imagine how many human hearts the Spirit of God can speak to if 1000 automobiles in major cities throughout the U.S. carry this decal on their rear windows. Or 10,000. Or 100,000. Are you starting to catch our vision? We need sponsors to help defray the cost of these decals. Once we receive the decals, we'll give them away. Why not turn your car into a powerful testimony for the Ten Commandments? You can once we get these decals.

His Voice Today on Legacy TV: After months of preparation, on September 11 WHM successfully filmed our first three His Voice Today programs for Legacy TV's national and international network. The first program, called "I Will Come Again!" will debut this Sunday night, September 23, at 10:30 PM EST. To see a full list of Legacy TV's affiliate stations, see http://legacytv.wordpress.com.

Watch Abigail Rose Wohlberg tell the story of Jonah: My wife Kristin and I are doing our best, with God's help, to raise our children for the Lord. Recently I recorded a short piece of Abby (age 4) telling the story of Jonah. If you have an interest in watching it, I hope it will brighten your day.

As I sit in my office in Priest River, Idaho, my heart longs for heaven. I hear so many stories of people suffering with cancer and various diseases. I imagine you do too. Holy angels understand what we humans suffer down here, and they know that Jesus Christ is soon to return to earth. If you have extra funds, this is the time to invest them in God's work. Soon our money will be worthless. We don't want to be found on the Day of the Lord with a large bank account. "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven," Jesus said, "For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also" (Matthew 6:19,20). Honestly, White Horse Media has so many needs -- far beyond the purchasing of car decals -- and we appreciate so much every dollar given to help us advance God's cause. "God loves a cheerful giver" (2 Cor. 9:7).

Until next time.

Keep the faith,

Steve Wohlberg

Violent Clashes Over Anti-Islam Film in 3 Nations

By:

Hundreds of protesters demonstrating against an anti-Islam film torched a press club and a government building in northwest Pakistan on Monday, sparking clashes with police that left at least one person dead. Demonstrations also turned violent outside a U.S. military base in Afghanistan and the U.S. Embassy in Indonesia.

The attacks were the latest in a week-long wave of violence sparked by the low-budget film, which portrays Islam's Prophet Muhammad as a fraud, a womanizer and a child molester. Many of the protests have targeted U.S. diplomatic posts throughout the Muslim world, including one that killed the U.S. ambassador to Libya, forcing Washington to ramp up security in select countries.

Protesters have directed their anger at the U.S. government even though the film was privately produced and American officials have criticized it for intentionally offending Muslims.

Several hundred demonstrators in Pakistan's northwest clashed with police Monday after setting fire to a press club and a government building, said police official Mukhtar Ahmed. The protesters apparently attacked the press club in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province's Upper Dir district because they were angry their rally wasn't getting more coverage, he said.

Police charged the crowd, beating protesters back with batons, Ahmad said. The demonstrators then attacked the office of a senior government official and surrounded a local police station, said Ahmad, who was had locked himself inside with several other officers.

One protester died when police and demonstrators exchanged fire and several others were wounded, police official Akhtar Hayat said.

The violence came a day after hundreds of protesters clashed with police when they tried to storm the U.S. Consulate in the southern city of Karachi. One protester was killed and over a dozen were wounded.

Pakistanis have also held many peaceful protests against the film, including one in the southwest town of Chaman on Monday attended by around 3,000 students and teachers.

In neighboring Afghanistan, hundreds of people burned cars and threw rocks at a U.S. military base in the capital, Kabul. Many in the crowd shouted "Death to America!" and "Death to those people who have made a film and insulted our prophet."

Police officers shot into the air to hold back about 800 protesters and to prevent them from pushing toward government buildings downtown, said Azizullah, a police officer at the site who, like many Afghans, only goes by one name.

More than 20 police officers were slightly injured, most of them hit by rocks, said Gen. Fahim Qaim, the commander of a city quick-reaction police force.

Later in the day, protests broke out in other areas of Kabul, including the main thoroughfare into the city, where demonstrators burned shipping containers and tires. The crowd torched at least one police vehicle before finally dispersing, according Daoud Amin, the deputy police chief for Kabul province.

At a separate protest in front of a mosque in southwest Kabul, several dozen people shouted anti-U.S. slogans and called for President Barack Obama to bring those who have insulted the prophet to justice.

The rallies will continue "until the people who made the film go to trial," said one of the protesters, Wahidullah Hotak.
A number of Afghan religious leaders urged calm.

"Our responsibility is to show a peaceful reaction, to hold peaceful protests. Do not harm people, their property or public property," said Karimullah Saqib, a cleric in Kabul.

The Afghan government has blocked video-sharing website YouTube to prevent Afghans from viewing a clip of the anti-Muslim film. Officials have said it will remain blocked until the video is taken down. Other Google services, including Gmail, were also blocked in Afghanistan during much of the weekend and access continued to be denied on some providers Monday.

In Jakarta, hundreds of Indonesians angered over the film clashed with police outside the U.S. Embassy, hurling rocks and firebombs and setting tires alight outside the mission, marking the first violence seen in the world's most populous Muslim country since international outrage over the film exploded last week.

At least 10 police were rushed to the hospital after being pelted with rocks and attacked with bamboo sticks, said Jakarta Police Chief Maj. Gen. Untung Rajad. He said four protesters were arrested and one was hospitalized.

Demonstrators burned a picture of President Barack Obama and also tried to ignite a fire truck parked outside the embassy after ripping a water hose off the vehicle and torching it, sending plumes of black smoke billowing into the sky. Police used a bullhorn to appeal for calm and deployed water cannons and tear gas to try to disperse the crowd as the protesters shouted "Allah Akbar," or God is great.

"We will destroy America like this flag!" a protester screamed while burning a U.S. flag. "We will chase away the American ambassador from the country!"

Demonstrations were also held Monday in the Indonesian cities of Medan and Bandung. Over the weekend in the central Java town of Solo, protesters stormed KFC and McDonald's restaurants, forcing customers to leave and management to close the stores.

The wave of international violence began last Tuesday when mainly Islamist protesters climbed the U.S. Embassy walls in the Egyptian capital of Cairo and tore down the American flag from a pole in the courtyard.

The U.S. Ambassador to Libya, Chris Stevens, was killed Tuesday along with three other Americans, as violent protesters stormed the consulate in Benghazi. Protesters have also stormed the U.S. Embassies in Tunis and Yemen and held violent demonstrations outside other posts.
2012 and the End of the World

Have you heard the news? The world may end in 2012.

This terrifying concept is now buzzing across the globe, in books, in theaters, and especially on the World Wide Web. The History Channel has become a strong advocate of the notion that 2012 predictions may, in fact, be true. Its three frightening documentaries, Nostradamus: 2012; Doomsday 2012: The End of Days; and Brad Meltzer's Decoded: 2012, all suggest we don't have much time left. Spooky "proof" is offered from the ancient Mayans, the Roman oracle Sybil, the Greek oracle at Delphi, medieval Merlin, Nostradamus, and even the Native American Hopi Indians. Apparently, they all pinpointed 2012 as The Year of the End.

The target date is December 21, 2012.

Tick, tick, tick, we're getting closer every day.

Discover the facts inside Steve Wohlberg's newest pocketbook, 2012 and the End of the World. Topics explored include: 2012 predictions, what the Bible says about the end of the age (Matthew 24:14), the return of Jesus Christ (Matthew 24:30,31), how to prepare for the Big Day, the infinite love of God for each of us (John 3:16), and the earth made new (see Revelation 21:1,4).
