Andrews Bible Commentary

Light. Depth. Truth.

Ángel Manuel Rodríguez

General Editor

The Andrews Bible Commentary is a companion to the Andrews Study Bible. Together they provide a remarkably comprehensive and concise Bible study resource.

The Andrews Bible Commentary was written by 60 leading biblical scholars from around the world. It's designed for the new believer, the experienced Bible student, pastors, and teachers. Its purpose is to trace the blessed hope (Titus 2:13) in the pages of Scripture and to read all of the Bible in the light of that hope.

What does the Bible say to believers who, with both longing and joy, anticipate the return of Jesus? Answering that question is at the heart of the Andrews Bible Commentary, which seeks to instruct and inspire all to form a stronger personal relationship with God that focuses worship on Jesus as Savior and Lord.

"I am so incredibly proud and grateful for the work of these scholars of the church in this first-of-a-kind Commentary. They placed themselves in the hands of the Lord and they have made an outstanding contribution that will bless the church for years to come. I have been honored and privileged to be part of the team."

—Ángel Manuel Rodríguez, General Editor

The Genesis Creation Account and Its Reverberations in the New Testament

Edited by Thomas R. Shepherd

When the first two chapters of Genesis say that God created our world and the human race in a particular way, did the Bible really mean that? If not, can it really mean what it says about everything else, particularly the grand themes of redemption and eschatology? This work provides a detailed cultural, historical, and theological background to the creation theme and section-by-section exegetical studies of how that theme is illuminated by the various New Testament writers. Is creation a major theme in the New Testament? This volume answers that question with a resounding “yes.”

The Genesis Creation Account and Its Reverberations in the Old Testament

Edited by Gerald A. Klingbeil

How does the rest of the Bible relate to Genesis 1 and 2? Do the various biblical authors portray creation theologies that align or diverge? Textual data of the Old Testament clearly portray an overarching understanding and theology of creation that permeates every biblical genre and book. A digital copy of this volume is now available for free, courtesy of the Faith and Science Council at www.adventistlearningcommunity.com/genesis-account.

Ranko Stefanovic is professor of New Testament at the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary at Andrews University in Michigan. He holds a PhD degree from Andrews University and is a well-loved teacher, popular speaker, and author of scholarly articles.

Plain Revelation

Ranko Stefanovic

In today's world, no other part of the Bible inspires so much interest, speculation, sensationalism, and confusion as the book of Revelation. Paradoxically, no other book of the Bible inspires so much confusion as does Revelation. In this concise reader's introduction, Revelation expert Ranko Stefanovic makes it all plain and simple. In a straight-forward, no-nonsense way, the author leads us scene by scene through this amazing panorama of cosmic war and glory. Through it all, we see the astounding picture of a Creator God who wins it all with justice and love as Jesus Christ is plainly revealed as King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

“Aunque todos los libros de la Biblia fueron inspirados por Dios, ningún otro libro de las Sagradas Escrituras presenta a Jesucristo como su autor, ni muestra el futuro como lo hace el Apocalipsis. En esta versión abreviada de su comentario del libro del Apocalipsis, el Dr. Stefanovic transmite con fluidez y claridad los conceptos principales de su obra original. Este libro debiera ser leído por todos aquellos que vivimos en la undécima hora de la historia de nuestro planeta.”

Daniel 11 Decoded

Jacques Doukhan

Daniel 11 is widely described as one of the most cryptic, complex texts in the Bible. Perhaps more than any other, it uses seemingly heavily coded language while ostensibly describing world events from the Persian period to our day. Thus, credible attempts by faithful scholars to read that code can lead in markedly different directions.

Writing from a solidly historicist perspective on prophetic interpretation, Jacques Doukhan lays the groundwork for this masterful study of Daniel 11 by (1) critiquing the history of its interpretation; (2) observing its literary context;

(3) closely examining its relationship to Daniel 8; (4) decoding the meaning of particular expressions; and (5) giving particular attention to the words, grammar, and literary structure of the chapter.

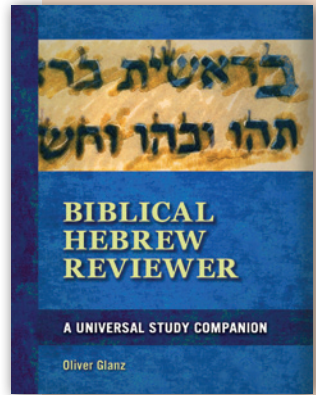

The bulk of Doukhan's book is comprised of a verse-by-verse exegesis and commentary on the biblical text, with a methodical appeal to other sources from the history of interpretation. Throughout the years, Doukhan's own unique interpretation of Daniel 11 has been affirmed and critiqued by his academic peers. His mature view is presented here as a milestone on the pathway of our understanding.

Servants and Friends

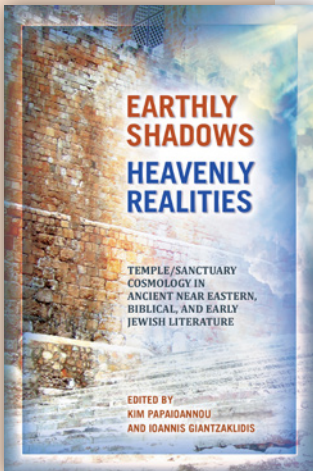

A Biblical Theology of Leadership
Edited by Skip Bell

Twenty Bible scholars and ministry professionals thoughtfully grapple with what the Scriptures, in their totality, actually have to teach us about the essence of true leadership. They examine and correlate the breadth of evidence for true leadership in the Old and New Testaments, tracing the nature of God's intent and bringing it all together in a fresh and challenging theological understanding that may radically alter what we have thought leadership really is.

God with Us

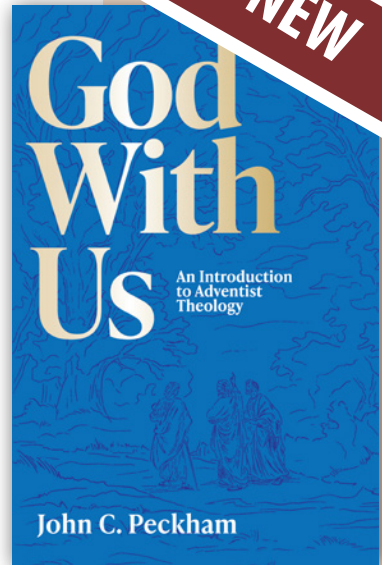

An Introduction to Adventist Theology
John C. Peckham

The story of Scripture is largely the story of God making a way to overcome sin and defeat evil so that God can be with us in fullness. That is, the story of Scripture is the story of God’s desire to be specially and personally present with us in a union of love.

We hear so often: “You ask too many questions.” “You just don’t have enough faith.” Or “We should not ask questions like that!” However, the better we come to know God, the more we come to love Him and the less threatened we are by honest questions. threatened we are by honest questions. Truth loses nothing by close investigation. To wrestle with God is acceptable, even as Jacob did (Gen. 32), as long as you refuse to let go of Him.

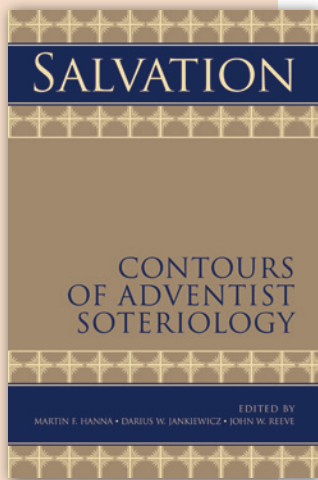

This book is an introduction to Christian theology from an Adventist perspective. It is written in a reader-friendly, “theology for everyone” format that can serve both as an introductory college textbook and as a sourcebook for general readers seeking to deepen their biblical knowledge and faith.

It encourages readers to ask, seek, and knock, as Jesus Himself invited people to do, and allows readers to see biblical teachings for themselves by offering a biblically-based introduction to the main elements of Adventist theology.

Salvation

Contours of Adventist Soteriology

Edited by Martin F. Hanna, Darius W. Jankiewicz and John W. Reeve

Salvation strongly affirms Adventism's Protestant soteriological roots, built on the work of the seventeenth-century Reformer Jacob Arminius. Following the Protestant principles of sola gratia et fides and solī Deo gloria, this book is organized according to the five tenets of Arminianism: Conditional Election, Unlimited Atonement, Total Depravity, Resistible Grace, and Christian Assurance/Sanctification. This is a book for our time on the great theme that will be our study for all eternity.

The Lost Meaning of the Seventh Day

Sigve K. Tonstad

This sweeping work of biblical theology and historical analysis traces the profound meaning of the seventh-day Sabbath throughout Scripture and history. It also investigates how this universal symbol became obscured and considers its relation to social issues in our time.

“Sigve Tonstad’s wide-ranging study of biblical teaching about the Sabbath . . . is a luminous, deeply encouraging book that beckons readers to understand the seventh day as a celebration of God’s gracious work of creation and God’s faithful intent to restore and heal all that is broken.”

Jesus of Nazareth

His Life, His Message, His Passion

William G. Johnsson

William G. Johnsson draws from his many years of firsthand experience teaching about the life and teachings of Jesus in a university setting to provide educators with this invaluable teaching resource. This textbook allows the Gospels themselves to tell the story of Jesus, but adds further insights from the works of Ellen G. White and other relevant literature to help enrich student understanding. The Jesus who emerges from this study is a dynamic person—amazing, challenging, and altogether wonderful.

Ellen G. White was a woman of remarkable spiritual gifts who lived most of her life during the nineteenth century (1827–1915), yet through her writings she is still making a life-changing impact on millions of people around the world. She is the most translated female writer in the history of literature.

Christ's Object Lessons

Ellen G. White

The first in the Inspirational Classics series, this book is a Christian literary classic and perhaps the most widely circulated devotional treatment of Christ's parables ever published. This new edition presents an original typeset in a time-honored form of book design and manufacture. The illustrations are selected from classic artistic treatments of the parables throughout art history, or are works with imagery that correlates with the theme of a particular parable. Generations of readers have found Christ's Object Lessons and all of Ellen G. White's writings unparalleled for their profound biblical literacy, depth of insight, simplicity of expression, and spiritual power.

This classic edition is ideal for anyone who appreciates a book that is beautiful in every way:

- Comfortable hand-sized dimensions
- High-quality cloth-cover binding
- Classic, highly readable type design
- Beautiful foil stamping
- Elegant gilded edging
- Full-color reproductions of classic works of art

Steps to Christ

Ellen G. White

The second volume in the Inspirational Classics series, this book features the enduring Christian literary classic Steps to Christ by Ellen G. White, which has been translated into approximately 160 languages since its first publication in 1892. It is the most widely read work of its author, whose prolific literary productions are recognized as significant contributions to Christian literature of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.

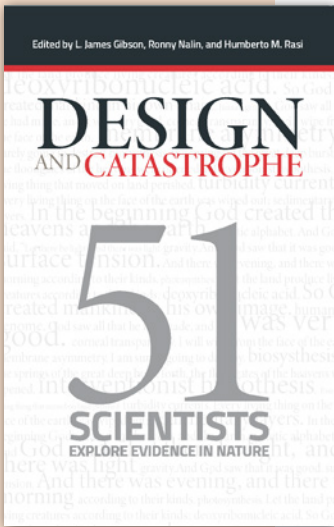

Education

Ellen G. White

The third volume in the Inspirational Classics series, this book focuses on true education. "Our ideas of education take too narrow and too low a range. There is need of a broader scope, a higher aim. True education means more than the pursuit of a certain course of study. It means more than a preparation for the life that now is. It has to do with the whole being, and with the whole period of existence possible to man. It is the harmonious development of the physical, the mental, and the spiritual powers. It prepares the student for the joy of service in this world and for the higher joy of wider service in the world to come."

A Scientific Exploration

J . C. Walton

This book is a comprehensive account of philosophical, scientific, and other scholarly matters relating to Genesis. It deals with philosophical questions about God and the miraculous. Careful consideration is given to scientific issues about chronology, scholarly findings about the text, and archaeological discoveries. It brings together a host of information supporting the historical reliability of Genesis and the impact this has on its message for today. After describing the impact of the secular naturalist worldview on the understanding and interpretation of Genesis, it suggests that now is the time to reconsider Genesis because two major fields underpinning secular naturalism (uniformitarian geoscience and evolutionary biology) are steadily losing credibility.

Faith, Reason, and Earth History, 3rd ed.

A Paradigm of Earth and Biological Origins by Intelligent Design

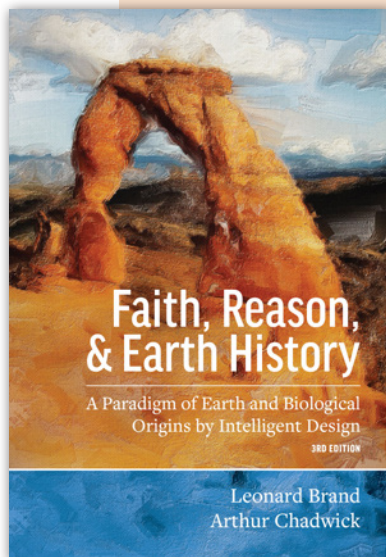

Leonard Brand and
Arthur Chadwick

This volume presents an argument for constructive thinking about origins and earth history in the context of Scripture, showing readers how to analyze available scientific data and approach unsolved problems. Faith does not need to fear the data, but can contribute to progress in understanding earth history within the context of God's Word while still being honest about unanswered questions.

The original edition of this work (1997) was one of the first books on this topic written from the point of view of an experienced research scientist. This fully updated third edition includes additional contributions from co-author Arthur Chadwick. In this patient explanation of the mission of science and its application to questions about origins and earth history, the authors model their conviction that "above all, it is essential that we treat each other with respect, even if we disagree on fundamental issues."

This thoughtful and rigorous presentation makes this landmark work highly useful both as a college-level text and as an easily accessible treatment for the interested layperson.

Scriptural Foundations Series

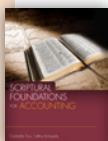

The Scriptural Foundations for Business series, edited by Michael E. Cafferky and Bruce Wrenn, comprises materials intended for the core business courses in most college schools or departments of business, commerce, or economics. As such, it provides a spiritual perspective that is needed to prepare a person of faith for a career in the world of business, whether in for-profit or not-for-profit enterprises. This series provides inspiration and education for living “a life worthy of the calling” (Ephesians 4:1) as God’s man or woman in the marketplace.

The Faith and Learning series, co-sponsored by the Center for College Faith at Andrews University and the Department of Education of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, addresses the challenge of teaching "secular" material in a way that meets the Christian's goal of building faith not only in the Christian message but also in the Adventist understanding of Christianity and in its mission to the world. Teachers and students can turn to these supplemental texts for insights about how to weave faith into their studies.

Educating for Eternity

A Seventh-day Adventist
Philosophy of Education

George R. Knight

Writing both for the layperson and the professional educator, George Knight crafts a bracing, inspiring, and invigorating reminder of what serious Adventists must demand from their schools—and from their educators.

Philosophy and Education, 4th ed.

An Introduction in Christian Perspective

George R. Knight

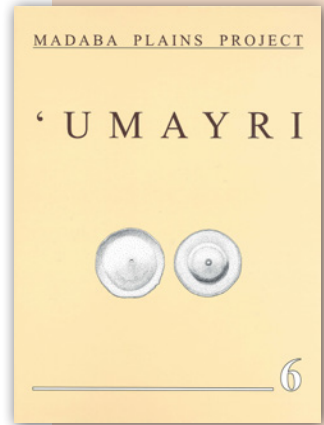

Philosophy and Education has been a classic in its field for more than a quarter of a century. Features of this edition, including a new chapter on the Christian teacher in the public school setting and “Points to Ponder” study questions, make it even more useful in educational philosophy classrooms.

Issues and Alternatives in Educational Philosophy, 4th ed.

George R. Knight

This book highlights the relationship between theory and practice and is suitable for undergraduate students in educational philosophy, graduate students who need a quick review of the topic, and teachers of educational philosophy who want their students to spend maximum time in primary sources while using a comprehensive text for orientation and overview.

The Madaba Plains Project series reports on seasonal findings from the excavations at Tall al-'Umayri and vicinity conducted by a consortium of colleges and universities including Andrews University. In its field reports and descriptions of the various seasons, this series provides analyses of such aspects as the food and water systems, sedentarization, nomadization, ancient environment, and ceramic and small finds.

Sutherland House

Originally named Brooknook because of its vantage point overlooking Lemon Creek, a tributary of the St. Joseph River, Sutherland House was built in 1902. It was the first building erected on the Andrews University campus when the institution, then known as Battle Creek College, was moved to Berrien Springs, Michigan, and renamed Emmanuel Missionary College in the fall of 1901. The spacious two-story structure was built as the home for the school's president, Edward A. Sutherland, and was later used variously through the years as a women's residence, infirmary, and housing for married students. By the early 1980s it was in a very poor condition and was slated for demolition. A University Trustee, Elsie L. Buck, persuaded her colleagues to save the building. Mrs. Buck raised the funds necessary for a complete renovation, and the house re-opened in 1987 as the headquarters for the Institute of World Mission. When that organization moved to new quarters in the Seminary building, Sutherland House, with the addition of a new "carriage house" that serves as the warehouse, became the home of Andrews University Press in 2005.
